His career was remarkably a lventurous. He participated in all the important secties of the New York taking the California route to Tantai of Shanghai, he proceeded to organize a body of native soldiers, and in six weeks captured live large cities. He has since brought into the field 12,000 thoroughly drilled Chinamen, fought not less than fifty different battles, and received fifteen severe wounds. In his whole career he was repulsed but twice. so that the Chinamen regarded him as almost invincible, and impervious to bullets. On the 20th of last September, however, he fell, mortally wounded, in an attempt to recapture the

AFFAIRS IN SOUTHERN KENTUCKY.
RUSSELLVILLE, KY., Dec. 12. Yesterday I came down on the cars from Louisville to this place. At Cave City we met the up train from Nashville to Louisville, I saw gentlemen direct from Clarksville, Tennessee, the day before, who informed me that the turnpike bridge across Rad River was burned on Tuesday night, the 9th inst. danism was executed is not known. In the meantime it is disastrous to the trade of Clarksville. If there is a city in the so-called Southern Confederacy which has suffered more severely in its commercial interests than Clarksville, that city is in a stitchle additional. Clarksville, that city is in a pitiable condition Clarksville has sown to the wind, and she is reaping the whirlwind.

reaping the whirlwind.

For several years past the exports from Clarksville, consisting principally of tobacco, flour, pork, bacon, and lard, amounted in the aggregate to between five and six millions (5,000,000 and 6,000,000); while the import trade, If I remember rightly, amounted to a million and a half (1,500,000). This was certainly a flourishing trade, for a six of server of the contraction of the contr tainly a flourishing trude for a city of some six or seven thousand inhabitants, and a prot itable one too, if there is any truth in the old theory of the balance of trade. But now this theory of the balance of trade. But now this countercial prosperity is all gone, if not forever, at least for years. This is the litter fruit of rebellion, attempt to disgnise it us they may. In former days the streets of Clarksville were noisy with lensy hum of trade, but now the silence of death reigns over trade, but now the silence of death reigns over the doomed city.

Ilow does this—I put the question to the citizens of Charksville—agree with the prediction of your leaders, when they told you how your condition would be improved in the vast salubrious and fertile empire which they were about to establish—an empire lnexhaustible in resources and rich in every variety of production and especially so in cutton which tolle in resources and rich in every variety of production, and especially so in cotton which was to oe your king? Ah! my friends, it was all a dream, the charm of which is fast dissolving into the sober realities of truth.

Not long since, 125 Federals were surprised and captured by Fortest, on the Mobile and tthic railroad, near Jackson, Tenn. They were puroled at Columbia, Manry county, on the 4th instant. Thirty-lour of these paroled soldiers were sent to Lonisville on Thesday.

the 4th instant. Thirty-lour of these paroled soldiers were sent to Louisville on Thesday last. An old gentleman who had been down after a sick son belonging to this commund, and who passed through Russellville after the soldiers, saw Woodward beyond Charlotte, Dixon county, with six or seven hundred men, as near as he could judge.

Col. Bruce is fortifying Russellville, not because he thinks there is any immediate danger, but because vigilance and a preparation for any emergency is the true policy. This ger, but because vigilance and a preparation for any emergency is the true policy. This brudential preparation is, I am sure, worthy of traise. Col. Bruce is, moreover, determined to gnard by vigilance against any surprise. There is an editorial in the Journal of the 6th inst, in regard to "the condition of affairs in that portion of Keutucky lying between Jumberland and Tradewater Rivers," in which 'ol. Bruce thinks injustice has freen done, Mai, Holloway, of the 8th Kentucky envalve. Maj. Holloway, of the 8th Kentucky envalry, has scouted all over Lyon and Caldwell conties, and been engaged in removing the obstructions placed in the Comberland by the rebels at lugraham Shoals. There were six boats loaded with stone and sunk at this point. In short, Col. Bruce denies that his command ts ever waited for "drums, music, or banners. Information was received at headquarter to-day in regard to the plans and purposes of the rebels, which it is not proper to make public at present. It relates to the operations of Cols, Johnson, Woodward, and G. W.

I had the pleasure to-day of seeing Colonel ohn McHenry, Jr., of the 17th Kentucky John Mellenry, Jr., of the 17th Kentucky Volunteers, who was lately dismissed from the service. I am very sorry that this event has occurred, because Colonel Mellenry is a gentleman every inch of him, a soldier, and a patriot. Of this there can be no doubt. It is his reputation among all who know him.

Col. Mellenry raised his regiment soon after the war commenced, and he has been with it in the field ever since. It is one of the best disciplined regiments in the service, and of it disciplined regiments in the service, and of it CoL Mellenry is the idol. He is beloved by his officers and men, and a single word from him would influence them to open revolt. But Col, McHenry counsels them to remain faithful in the service of their country.

There is another feature in this affair, which cannot fail to elevate Col. McHenry in the estimation, not only of his friends, font in the estimation of all men to whom honor is dear. Secessionists have made it the occasion of exitation, and attempts have been made to so duce him from his loyalty to the support of a cruse which he abhors in his south. Colonel Melleury has turned a cold shoulder and a deat ear to all these blandishments, and given his secession sympathizers to understand that no injustice to him personally can make him a rebell against his Government. In losing such a man, the service of his country sustains an injury.

THE BANKS EXPLDITION .- A letter from a pecial correspondent of the Philadelphia Intirer, dated "Propeller Albany, at Sea, Dec. h, 1862," gives us some items of information. le does not tell us where the expedition is gong exactly, for the Captain of the Albany had ealed orders, which, as late as Tuesday, had not been opened. Enough was known, howver, to warrant the following statement: The expedition will not land at any of the oints now discussed. It will not go as far as some think, and yet farther than others sus-nect. This, although it may seem like a rid-

The letter continues: The letter continues:

On Sunday, we were visited by a storm of no ordinary violence. When about one hundred and thirty miles out from New York, a strong westerly wind arose, which broke the mizzen-mast boom, and blew away some of our rigging. As the night set in the clonds began to look threatening, and before nine o'clock the sea was lasted into a perfect form. The lattle Albany, although rolling terribly, stood it well, and after tacking about some time we at last sailed in under the ice of Caps May. During the storm there was hardly a person on housel who did not suffer from seasickness; and the miscry among the men between decks can hardly be imagined. Unfortunately, our doctor was the most seriously sick men among as.

This morning, as several soldiers were eat-sudden gust of wind swept their plates and in cups into the sea, leaving the astonished roops to go hungry until dinner time. There as quite a fleet anchored with us at Cape tay, and the several points below, which pre-ented a very imposing appearance as we got nder way after the storm and stood out to the transports, and almost every day we pass some of them, while others, faster than the Albany, pass us. Altogether, the fleet will consist of about forty vessels. How large they are, how many men they carry, or what they re freighted with, I am not permitted to say, nother words, this letter must necessarily be neatisfactory, in consequence of the peculiar ironmstances of the case. Never unid, nope soon to be able to write you glorions news concerning the achievements of this expectation—the grandest of the war.

It doesn't think much-(the Intelligence I mean)—of Halleck's strategy, and says ver squarely that if McClellan's advice had bee ured up to Washington in force, or over int daryland.

The Intelligencer has one very sharp hit a ion. Hallock. It quotes a passage in his re put, where he complains of the fact that the chel troops outmarch ours in advance or re the Department of the Mississippi! A good any people are laughing to-day over this hi The hit is indeed a sharp one,-

A hit, a very pulpable hit. And, as the Traveller's correspondent we atimates, the hit is deserved; it is a hit the a hit-a hit that is not amiss.

Apropos of this whole matter, the Washing on correspondent of the New York Journal is Commerce, who is personally a warm frien the President's, says:

The opinion seems to be universal that General Halleck has given himself a blow, from which he will not soon recover. General McRellan's letter of August 4th, as it rouges to Greffan sletter of Angust 4th, as it romes to usin his report, looks like a diamond set it pinchbeck. It is apparent to all that one of them is permented by a spirit of envy of spleen, while the other has the pure tone of Thristian's prayer, and toneties the soul like the blast of a clarion. It is astonading that General Halleck should have forgotten his covers spirit, and the wn snail-like marches at Corinth, and the e was never informed of what General M Hellan accomplished in Maryland. > OUTNUMBERED!-It is a startling fact that is nearly every engagement, east and west, th 'nion troops are "outumbered" by the enemy. Even when we whip the rebels, it is in nine cases out of ten, with the odds agains us. The other day, in Arkansas, Gen. Her on, with 7,000 men, had to fight 24,000 rebels If his troops hadn't fought like tigers, the would have all been captured. Indeed, b very rule of modern warfare, they shou ave been captured, and were whipped, mor than once, but either didn't know it c wouldn't believe it. Their triumph was ablime achievement; but it doesn't at all detract from the astounding fact that, on nearly every occasion, the rebels outpumber us.

We have, through the medium of correspondence and otherwise, furnished the irresponsible mob to retaliate upon the defenceless enemy who by are ident fell into their hands. We have heard that, among the Confederate soldiers who were thus merculessly slain, was a young man named Albert Thrift, whose relations reside in thio. Several vears prior to the inauguration of the war the ag man made his home in Tennessce. He as a youth of fine attainments and of unexceptionable character and of good lamily. It is said he was forced into the rebel army n opposition to his better judgment. He was wounded in a skirmish near Crab Orchard, Ky., and left by the retreating rebel army within the borders of our own State. Falling under the care of a logal family, he was in fair way of recovery; and, although we at shocked when we contemplate the circum stances of his cruel death at the hands of hi murderers, it is consoling, that, near the close of his life, he expressed the desire to abandon the cause of the rebellion and to return to hi home at the North. The wish was expressed in no cowardly spirit, however, for he met his terrible fate with the coolness, with the hero ism of one who knew no fear.

Upon an ordinary occasion such weath er as was vouchsafed to us yesterday and last evening would have kept the pleasure-seeking community in doors, but the town, or the fashionable pertion of it, at least, could not repress the desire to exhibit their admiration for Gottsehalk and his charming accompaniment, Miss Patti. Masonic Temple was filled to one's idea of comfort, and the attendance was well worthy the experiment, for every one was gratified, and regretted that the manager's engagements would not admit of a rep-

A pleasing feature of the entertainment was the introduction of the duetto upon the piano Miss Engenia de Roode, a former pupil of Mr. Gottschalk, leading, and Mr. G. playing the accompaniment, a pleasure thrown in without previous announcement. Mr. Gottschulk is very warm in his praises of Mis Engenia's instrumentation, and expresses the opinion that no lady of the present age exhibits a degree of skill equal to hers. We are gratified to learn that the Misses de Roode will give a concert in this city, one evening during the present week, and the aunouncement will of course create a sensation.

THE AFFAIR AT HARTSVILLE. - The Editor e the Ciucinnati Commercial has conversed with a number of members of the Ohio regiments captured and paroled at Hartsville, from whem he learns that the camp of the brigade was surrounded by the rebels during the night, who adroitly captured the pickets without creasing alarm. They attacked at daybreak, to the utter surprise of the Federals, many of whom were awakened by a lond reveille o minsketry. The battalions could not be formed, but all agree that many of the line oflicers hurriedly gathered their commands together and fought bravely, but without concert and at terrible disadrantage. Some of the squads fought determinedly even after the surrender but, of course, were soon overpowered. This is the plain statement the Editor obtained from the men themselves. Had the commonest precaution been taken against a sulden irrup. tion of the enemy, these men would have fought well; and, instead of being marched to the rear mortified and dispirited, might have sent back their standards to be inscribed with

We learn with regret that the Rev. A. . Osborne has resigned the care of the Jeller. on street Baptist Church in this city and acrepied a call to the pastorate of the Fourth Baptist Church in St. Louis. Mr. Osborne during the four years that he has resided in Louisville has greatly endeared himself to the hearts of his church and congregation, and has won an enviable reputation as a sound and troe able preacher of the gospel. Untside of his not? special sphere of pastoral labor, Mr. t) shorne has also exerted no inconsiderable influence. Especially in the cause of popular education he has labored zealously and efficiently, and in the Board of Examiners and School Trustees his loss will be deeply felt. Mr. Osborne has it seems already entered upon his new field of labor under encouraging anspices.

PERFECTION OF THE PLOCKADE. Since the commencement of our national elicalities, four powerful squadrons have been illected, organized, and stationed for du'y on e illected, organized, and stationed for in yellow maritime frontier with a rapidity and suddenness which find no approach to a parallel a previous naval history, and which it is to-heved no other remains but our own could anvey achieved. These squadrons have been in essaulty undubining a strict blockade of such a greantic proportions that emucant statesin in the linguist seems of legislation dis the state at its commencement publicly to connec it as "a material impossibility;" an anomee it as a different impossionity; and taller fins most imposing naval undertak g had been for a period of eighteen month, operation, and after its reach had been effec-rely extended along the entire sweep of on traitic and Gulf coasts, from the outlet o

But error such testimony was not needed. The proof of the fact abounds in the current price of our southern staples in the great commercial marts of the world, and more especially in the whole industrial and in the current price of our southern stayles in the great commercial marts of the world, and more especially in the whole in-bistrial and commercial condition of the insurgent region. It should not be forgotten that no circumstance is wanting to attest the inagoitude of this greatest of all naval triumphs.

The industrial neressities and the commercial cupidity of all the principal maritime nations, armed and empowered as they are by the resources of modern invention, are kept at lay. A multitude of island harbors under foreign juris liction, looking nearly upon our shores and affording the most convenient lurking places from which illivit commerce may icap forth to its prohibited destination and purpose, are so closely watched as to render the peril of all such ventures far greater than even their enormous gains when successful. And, finally, a vast line of sencoast nearly three thousand miles in extent, much of it with a double shore and almost honey-combed with inlets and harbors, has been so beleaguered and locked up that the whole numense foreign rommerte, which was the very life of the industria and opulence of the vest tegion which it borders, has practically ceased to exist.

The report next goes on to recount the distribution of the fore and its actions, but, as our readers are familiar with these, we omit them.

This exhibition of the distribution and atti tale of our naval force naturally introduce a succinct history of that remarkable series of aval expeditions and operations along our Southern seaboard and through the great riv-ers of the central valley in which the power and valor of our navy have been so strikingly displayed. These expeditions, it must be re-membered, were underlaken in addition to, or rather in aid of the nurchixing labors of the blockade. They were conceived and directed into the policy varly adopted and unitormly adhered to by this department, of the nost active and strenuous prosecution of the war, so long as the war should last, and when-over and wherever an effectual blow could be one of our blockbuling squadrous has seenred and holds a considerable portion of the coast within their respective limits, and in each there is a commodious and open port for renexvous, refitment, and supply, where imports and exports may be made under the authority

Nearly the entire scaboard of the insurgent region in its main points of commercial or strategic importance—from Norfolk and the outlet of the Chesapeake through Romake, Newbern, and Beaufort, N. C., Purt Royal, Tybee, Frinandina, Key West, Pensacola to New Orleans and Galveston—is practically in our hands, held first and irrecoverable under the gaus of our navy, or else garrisone I and governed by our unithary force. But a short preximation neekes allusion to it justifiable, the grave and unportant question whether, in so far as relates to all norts and places on the insurgent sea coast-thus actually held and controlled by the National Government in time of war, it being our right and duty to dismiss the costly apparatus and embarrassing formulities and rules of an international blockade, and to substitute in piace of it, within all the ports and places held and occupied by our forces, our own domestic authority to control all the trade therein, as we control everything else there, and thus to subject at such points all the trade therein, as we control everything else there, and thus to subject at such points all the protections.

ever and wherever an effectual blow could be struck against the power or resources of the rebellion by the inval force.

Is this view this department has constantly sought the co-operation of the army when such co-operation was not indispensable, the may alone has acted. The result is that the Mississippi, the main artery of the great central valley of the Union, with its principal tributaries, embracing many thousand miles of inland navigation which had been interrupted, is unlier our control, except at Vicksburg, where the rebels still retain possession, but from which, with a co-operating military force, they can at any time be expelled. Each one of our blockading squadrous has secured.
